Undergraduate Scholarship Awards – July 2015

Name	School	Major	Summary of Achievements
Ashley Knight-Williams	Howard University	Administration of Justice	Ashley is on the Dean's List, a continued Thurgood Marshall Scholar and on the National Society of Collegiate Scholars (NSCS). She volunteers on the NSCS Youth Development Board for education serving Tubman Elementary School and DC Reads Tutoring, and founded an initiative to Bolstering in Excellence While Emerging in Productivity (BEEP). Ashley aspires to become a Special Agent with the FBI. Her academic deans and faculty praise her leadership and commitment to education and service.
Rocio Rossi	Catholic University of the Americas	Physics	Rocio was a recipient of the undergraduate scholarship award in 2014. Working full-time while maintaining a high grade point average, she still finds time to volunteer and teach writing/reading to Spanish-speaking adults learning English. Both of her recommendations attest to her leadership abilities and commitment to community. Rocio aspires to become a scientist/researcher in the physics of climate gases.

Name	School	Major	Summary of Achievements
Anita Williams	Georgetown University	Justice and Peace Studies	Anita was a recipient of the undergraduate scholarship award in 2014. Originally from Sierra Leone, she became aware at an early age of social norms that adversely impact women. She is founder and co-president of the Guyer High School Gay Straight Alliance that has a goal to stop bullying. She volunteers her time towards human rights issues in North Korea and worked with the Department of Health and Human Services' Women Infant and Children's (WIC) program. Anita's ultimate goal is to become a UN High Commissioner for Humanitarian Aid, with an emphasis on women and children.
